

MOCK DEPOSITION OF A PROPANE ACCIDENT CASE

Join Eric Leskinen (P3 Propane Safety) and Sean Magenis (McCoy, Leavitt, Laskey LLC) at the Northern New England Energy Conference as we present a mock deposition of a propane accident case. This informative program will demonstrate what happens in a discovery deposition from the perspectives of the defense team and plaintiff attorneys.

Eric Leskinen

Eric Leskinen is one of the foremost propane safety experts in the country. Eric has almost 30 years of experience in the propane and trucking Industry experience including 15 years as a Director of Safety, Training & Compliance for a multi-state propane & fuel distributor. He is a current Certified Employee Training Program (CETP) Instructor as well as Proctor. Mr. Leskinen served on the Propane Education Research Council's (PERC) Safety & Training Advisory Committee (STAC) for 8 years and was the Chairman of the CETP 2.3 Transport Operations re-write taskforce in 2012-13. He has also served on various sub-committees including; Cathodic Protection Training Program, Static Electricity Training, Mobile Crane Safety, Consumer Safety & Duty-to-Warn, OSHA & DOT First 90-Day Training, Propane Jurisdictional Systems and CETP Vapor Distribution Systems. Eric, a member of the Propane Gas Defense Association (PGDA) since 2008, is a current Board Member and was President in 2012.

Sean Magenis

Sean Magenis represents clients in all aspects of civil litigation as well as before state and federal administrative agencies. Focusing on the defense of fire and explosion claims, his representative experience includes defense of a multinational chemical supply company in connection with an industrial facility explosion (Tokio Marine, et al. v. Eka Chemicals, Inc., et al.); coordination of the defense of over 100 personal injury claims relating to an allegedly defective consumer product (In re Fuel Barons, Inc.); and defense of a product manufacturer in connection with a warehouse fire (Tom's of Maine v. Acme-Hardesty Co., et al.). Running the gauntlet between resolving disputes through settlement or in the courtroom, he has conducted both jury and non-jury trials. He brings his experience in litigation involving diverse fields of law, including premises liability, product liability defense, and employment law, to bear on behalf of individuals and organizations.